

Marilyn Frasca

Current Work

During the summer and fall of 2020 fires raged in California and Oregon, people all over the world were becoming ill and dying from COVID and Donald Trump was votes away from winning another term as president.

Our atmosphere was literally thick with smoke and stress as I made the short walk to my studio where I made drawings as a way of sorting things out, as a way of seeing what I was feeling.

Hope, 2020